Violent thugs elude Ottawa police officers

New report. But incidence and severity of violent crime dropping in Ottawa, statistics reveal

JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

The Ottawa Police Service isn't performing as well as all but two of its Ontario counterparts in solving violent crimes, according to a new report to be tabled at Monday's police services board meeting.

Data in the 2011 Ontario Municipal Benchmarking Initiative (OMBI) report for OPS shows that the police force falls below the provincial median when it comes to solving violent crime and that "there is room for improvement."

Ottawa's 62 per cent clearance rate for violent crimes in 2011 falls far below the 76 per cent median at the provincial level.

The 2011 OMBI Performance Measurement Report shows that Toronto and Hamilton are the only cities where clearance rates for violent crime were below Ottawa's.

It also shows Ottawa's clearance rate for violent crime has been dropping since 2009.

The OPS report also states the total clearance rate for OPS is below the provincial average, but does not specify what the rate is.

However, that report also highlighted that Ottawa's violent crime rate continues to improve.

There were 566 violent criminal code incidents per 100,000 residents in 2011 compared to the OMBI median of 908. That figure was 600 in 2010 and 644 in 2009 for Ottawa.

Ottawa has maintained the same total crime rate for the past three years, according to the report. There were 3,950 reported Criminal Code of Canada incidents (non-traffic) per 100,000 residents compared to the Ontario median of 4,670.

Other areas where the OPS scored above the OMBI median average were the property crime clearance rate, change in violent crime rate, and change in property crime rate.

The provincial benchmarking initiative is a collaborate data collection tool used by 14 municipalities across Ontario as well the cities of Calgary and Winnipeg on approximately 900 measures in 37 public service areas.

Wheelchair hockey league heating up as NHL fizzles

OPWHL. Fledgling league looks to expand with two more teams

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

With NHL hockey at a standstill for 11 weeks, a local hockey league consisting entirely of people with physical disabilities celebrated an expansion of two teams Sunday at a game inside Carleton University's Norm Fenn gym.

A group of Carleton students started the Ottawa Power Wheelchair Hockey League (OPWHL) in 2009, and in August the league hosted the North American Power Hockey Association tournament.

People in power wheelchairs who have limited upper body strength or mobility play the game in a setting similar to floor hockey.

Getting across the floor requires a player's full attention as they guide a ball using a stick that is tied to their wheelchair or arm, while the other hand navigates the wheelchair.

two teams — the Sharks and the Gators — drew a crowd of about 50 fans. At the end of the hour-long game, the Sharks celebrated a 4-2 victory.

As interest in the league develops, OPWHL board chair Donna Haycock said she is looking for more funding opportunities so the players can keep playing in regional championships and expand to four teams.

The league said booking City of Ottawa gym time costs the league almost $4,000 per season.

"A lot of these people never thought they would be able to play hockey," said Haycock.

"They would have to sit and watch. Now they're out there playing a modified version with the same intensity, the same excitement, and the same social group setting."

Kids to educate Parliament on diabetes

Parliament Hill is home to many lobbyists, but on Tuesday 40 new members will be joining their ranks for the day to talk about juvenile diabetes.

"I just want to tell them I am a diabetic and I want to fight for a cure," said Eric Currie, 9, who was diagnosed four years ago.

The Osgoode native, who is part of a group of kids from across Canada living with Type 1 diabetes, was selected by the JDRC (formerly known as the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation) for Kids Lobby Day to talk to parliamentarians about living with the disease.

Currie said he hoped to get more money for JDRC.

"At first he was really nervous and didn't want anybody to know about it," said Eric's mother, Natalie Currie, who was also diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes about 30 years ago.

After overcoming his shyness and participating in volunteer activities with the JDRC, Eric wanted to tell the world about life with the disease.

Natalie said many people still confuse Type 1 with Type 2 diabetes. "Most people who get diabetes before they are 30, there's nothing they could have done. Their pancreas just stops working," she said.

Type 1 vs. Type 2

- Type 1 diabetes. This occurs when the cells in a person's body responsible for making insulin stop working.
- Type 2 diabetes. This occurs when a person's body doesn't make enough insulin. It's a secondary disease relating to something else happening in the person's body, such as pregnancy or pancreatic damage.

"We're the ones who found her and we're on our way now to get her," she said.

Female inmate alleges she was 'thrown in the hole' for no bra

Dress code. Niagara artist says she received 2 weeks in segregation cell, 5 days pulled from early-release date

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

An inmate at the Vanier Centre for Women in Milton, Ont., has filed a complaint alleging correctional officers put her in a segregation cell and tacked on five extra days to her sentence because she refuses to wear a bra.

"I was locked down in a segregation cell from the morning of Nov. 1 to the afternoon of Nov. 15. I was first charged with misconduct for not wearing a bra," Jeannette Tossounian, who is currently serving a sentence for arson, wrote in a letter to Metro.

"A few days later, I was charged with another misconduct for saying I don't want to wear a bra and was given five extra days to spend in jail from my early release date, December 2013."

The Elizabeth Fry Society confirmed that Tossounian has filed an official complaint about the incident.

Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services spokesman Brent Ross would not comment on the allegations, but confirmed that female inmates are required to wear bras.

"We have policies in place to ensure inmates are treated justly and humanely in all sections of our facilities, including segregation," he said in an email response. "While incarcerated, inmates can be awarded remitted time, which is a reduction of a sentence for good conduct, and they can also lose their remitted time or have their privileges suspended if they commit a serious misconduct."

Tossounian said her aversion to bras wasn't always a problem for her in jail.

"I was incarcerated at Vanier for eight-and-a-half months and was braless the whole time before I was locked down. I guess the guards had better things to do than stare at my chest, examining for looseness," she wrote. "As soon as I put in a request to change to a better unit so I could participate in more programs, I was charged with these misconducts and thrown in the hole."

Cruelty claims

"No matter what an inmate does, if the institution wants to punish, they will get punished."

Inmate Jeannette Tossounian, writing in a letter to Metro

Tossounian wrote that she has never been a bra-wearer and believes studies that link wearing a bra to breast cancer, a premise not widely accepted by the scientific community.

"To (force) a woman to wear a bra, inmate or not, is a violation of human rights. It is sexual discrimination that breaks a woman down into body parts that must be controlled because these parts are female," she wrote.

Tossounian also wrote that the incident made her feel helpless.

"Some inmates end up losing their minds, even to the point of committing suicide," she wrote. "I have to remain strong."

Morsi's bid for more power causes turmoil

Power struggle.
Fight over president's powers threatens to destabilize the country as stocks plunge amid ongoing chaos

Supporters and opponents of Egypt's president on Sunday grew more entrenched in their potentially destabilizing battle over the Islamist leader's move to assume near absolute powers, with neither side appearing willing to back down as the stock market plunged amid the fresh turmoil.

The standoff poses one of the hardest tests for the nation's liberal and secular opposition since Hosni Mubarak's ouster nearly two years ago. Failure to sustain protests and eventually force Mohammed Morsi to loosen control could consign it to long-term irrelevance.

Clashes between the two sides spilled onto the streets for a third day since the president issued edicts that make him immune to oversight of any kind, including that of the courts.

A teenager was killed and at least 40 people were wounded when a group of anti-Morsi protesters tried to storm the local offices of the political arm of the president's Muslim Brotherhood in the Nile Delta city of Damanhour, according to security officials.

It was the first reported death from the street battles that erupted across much of the nation on Friday, the day after Morsi's decrees were announced. The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media, identified the boy as 15-year-old Islam Hamdi Abdel-Maqsood.

The tensions also dealt a fresh blow to the economy, which has suffered due to the problems plaguing the Arab world's most populous nation since Mubarak's ouster.

Egypt's benchmark EGX30 stock index dropped 9.59 percentage points Sunday in the first trading session since Morsi issued his decrees.

Cheers! Wine consumption on 'meteoric rise' in Canada

Canadians are increasingly reaching for a glass of Beaujolais instead of beer and they're also drinking more domestic wines, says a new study on Canadian drinking habits.

Consumers bought an average of 22 bottles of wine in 2011, up from 13 in 1995, found the Bank of Montreal's special report on the Canadian wine industry.

"It's a meteoric rise, really," said David Rinneard, national manager of agriculture at BMO.

And Canada's wine industry is poised for solid growth over the next five years, thanks in part to an aging population, a willingness to pay more for premium wines and the opportunity for domestic producers

Why wait for Boxing Day? Deal season comes early

Black Friday, Cyber Monday. Longtime U.S. discount weekend is now taking root on Canadian soil

As hype surrounding Cyber Monday and Black Friday spreads north of the border, experts say the burgeoning weekend-long holiday sales event could soon surpass Boxing Day as the busiest shopping period of the year.

With the frenzy of what could be Canada's biggest-ever Black Friday over, deal-seekers are turning their focus to Cyber Monday, a day of deep online discounts held the Monday after the busiest shopping day of the year in the U.S.

For years, both events were largely U.S. phenomena that had Canadians who wanted to participate visiting American websites or making cross-border trips on the day after U.S. Thanksgiving, which marks the start of the crucial holiday shopping season when retailers turn profits, or go "into the black."

But a combination of factors — U.S. competitors setting up shop in Canada, Canadian retailers trying to keep sales local, Canadians' shifting shopping habits and tight-fisted consumers with shaky confidence in the economy — are helping to establish the events on Canadian soil.

Turkey and discounts

- In the U.S., Thanksgiving shopping on Thursday took a noticeable bite out of Black Friday's start to the holiday season, as retail sales in stores fell slightly from last year. Hundreds of thousands of shoppers hit sales Thursday evening while still full of their Thanksgiving dinner.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willy Kruh, global chairman in retail markets at KPMG, said he wouldn't be surprised if the four days from Black Friday to Cyber Monday soon overtake Boxing Day, now expanded to Boxing Week, as the best period for retailers in Canada.

He says Cyber Monday — which cropped up in Canada just three years ago — is growing at an even faster pace in Canada than Black Friday, as retailers look for new ways to fight back against U.S. competitors eating into their profits.

COUNTING BLESSINGS IN A LUCKY CITY

URBAN COMPASS

to remember, on balance, what a lucky place this is and how lucky we are to live in it.

Walking the household mutt this particular November though, on a series of mild, sunny days, each of which felt like it must surely be the last one of the year until it was impossibly followed by yet another, made feeling fortunate easier.

Luck running out?

A month after the Bluesfest incident, wind collapsed a stage at the Indiana State Fair, killing five and injuring 45. That could have been us.

never wants for fascinating tidbits of litter, both edible and merely eatable, left behind by the fortunate and thoughtless.

A number of other dog walkers also enjoy the pathway without feeling any responsibility to pick up after their canine escorts and sometimes you end up stepping in someone else's oversight. More baffling, however, are the deposits that have been bagged and then left lying there anyway, to be retrieved presumably by someone else.

But these are the petty failures of citizenship of which I have the luxury of complaining in a city with an enviably low crime rate and an under-control police budget that doesn't threaten, as it does in other cities, to eclipse all other priorities.

A Statistics Canada report this year pointed to a 41 per cent growth in municipal policing costs in the past decade, taking an ever-bigger percentage of total spending in places like Vancouver (22.4), Calgary (23.8) and Peel Region (28.7).

In Ottawa, policing accounts for 11 per cent of the proposed 2013 budget, with increases limited, like most everything else, to 2.5 per cent. This budgetary tightness sometimes chafes, of course, and can inspire some innovative revenue-raising schemes.

Last week, for example, the president of the Ottawa Police Association suggested a special surcharge on alcoholic beverages sold in the Byward Market — an idiot tax, if you will — or a cover charge on closing time in order to help pay for the costs of policing the party when area bars let out.

That one's unlikely to fly, and while the Market is undeniably a handful for the cops, what would other city police forces give for problems of such relative triviality?

Even on some of the worst nights, our luck has a way of holding out. The Ontario Ministry of Labour last week released its report on the collapse of the main stage at Bluesfest in 2011. Although it apportioned some blame to stage company Groupe Berger — findings the company disputes — it also made clear how much worse it all could easily have been.

"Although no critical injuries were reported," it reminds us, "the risk for serious injuries and fatalities to both workers and patrons of the festival was very high."

A month after the Bluesfest incident, wind collapsed a stage at the Indiana State Fair, killing five and injuring 45. That could have been us.

The city's good luck is not always spread evenly, though, as data from the University of Ottawa's ongoing Ottawa Neighbourhood Study, a compilation and comparison of vital statistics for all city neighbourhoods, repeatedly shows.

Ottawa Public Health last week used data from the study to warn that in 22 of the city's 33 lower-income areas, residents have to walk long distances to get to a real grocery store.

The city is planning to offer some $20 million in tax breaks to high-tech businesses to locate in Orleans, which is starved for such jobs. It would likely cost less to provide incentives to lure grocers into these less-lucky neighbourhoods, which are starved for affordable fresh food.

November's typically a month when this city's charms — as sunlight fades and warmth blows away — grow ever less apparent. It takes more effort

I'm also lucky enough to live near and walk along one of the undeniable and obvious perks of living in the nation's capital, an NCC pathway, even as the evidence that this good fortune is taken somewhat for granted lies everywhere.

The number of unwanted CDs used in Munro's installation. Donated by a local recycling centre, they were placed on a grassy amphitheatre, which measures 28 metres across. The "moon," which measures 1.5 metres in diameter, is made up of 101 spheres containing coiled optic fibers. It glows with blue light, which is passed along the fiber optics via a metal halide projector. It took Munro and his team of more than a dozen volunteers one week to install.

Artist's viewpoint

"At dusk, when the CDs reflect the light from the sky, and the landscape is dark, the installation shines brightest and looks like a massive sequin bead."

Bruce Munro, light installation artist

Brighter when dark

Metro: What's special about the material of CDs?

Munro: Their iridescent quality of reflecting light — they look just like a rainbow. But what's so unusual about the CDs is that they seem to reflect light better when there is not a lot of natural light around.

No love for Bieber's halftime show from Grey Cup crowd

CFL. Bieber booed, Lightfoot lauded during splashy halftime show

Justin Bieber faced a hostile homecoming at the 100th Grey Cup on Sunday, with the jeering capacity crowd at the raucous Rogers Centre providing the teen idol with a reception as unyieldingly cold as a long Canadian winter.

The 18-year-old grew up roughly 150 kilometres down the road in Stratford, Ont., but that didn't help his cause with the rowdy crowd on hand, who took aim at the ubiquitous pop star whenever possible.

They booed when his face popped up on the Jumbotron. They booed when a host spoke his name at the onset of halftime. And they booed with extra glee as he took the stage and throughout his medley of the finger-snapping, chart-topping hit Boyfriend and the disco-inflected club come-on Beauty and a Beat.

If Bieber was bothered by the boo-birds, it didn't show.

"It's an honour to be here at the Grey Cup in Canada," he said, a smile tugging at his lips despite the reaction.

"Make some noise. I said make some noise!"

Unfortunately, the crowd obliged. More boos.

As he wrapped up Beat a dazzling array of pyrotechnic lights popped into the air and at first the crowd responded enthusiastically. But once again, the cheers dissolved into boos.

"Thank you so much Canada," Bieber announced, ignoring the response. "I love you."

Most figured that while Bieber is a bona fide draw — an international star and tabloid fixture whose latest record Believe became his third straight to reach multi-platinum status in Canada after its June release — most of those fans simply weren't at the game.

"J-Biebs doesn't scream football, you know? Neither does Carly Rae Jepsen," said Calgary's Ryan Prisique, 22.

"Gordon Lightfoot — that'll be the time I turn back from the beer gardens and watch."

The 74-year-old Lightfoot certainly did captivate the crowd Sunday. With the stadium lights down, Lightfoot opened the halftime show by materializing on a modest stage near the 50-yard line, dressed in black and strumming an acoustic guitar. The crowd roared.

Pop outfit Marianas Trench was greeted mostly with indifference, while Jepsen also received a mixed reaction at first but won the crowd over during an enthusiastic medley of her latest single, This Kiss, and her smash hit Call Me Maybe. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dallas J.R. actor Larry Hagman brought ‘joy to everyone he knew’

Remembering a legend. Actor, who was reprising infamous role in a new edition of popular TV series, succumbs to cancer

J.R. Ewing was a business cheat, faithless husband and bottomless well of corruption. Yet with his sparkling grin, Larry Hagman masterfully created the charmingly loathsome oil baron — and coaxed forth a Texas-size gusher of ratings — on television’s long-running and hugely successful nighttime soap, Dallas.

Although he first gained fame as nice guy Capt. Tony Nelson on the fluffy 1965-70 NBC comedy I Dream of Jeannie, Hagman earned his greatest stardom with J.R. The CBS serial drama about the Ewing family and those in their orbit aired from April 1978 to May 1991, and broke viewing records with its Who shot J.R.? 1980 cliffhanger that left unclear if Hagman’s character was dead.

The actor, who returned as J.R. in a new edition of Dallas this year, had a long history of health problems and died Friday due to complications from his battle with cancer, his family said. “Larry was back in his beloved hometown of Dallas, re-enacting the iconic role he loved the most. Larry’s family and closest friends had joined him in Dallas for the Thanksgiving holiday,” the family said in a statement that was provided to The Associated Press by Warner Bros., producer of the show.

The 81-year-old actor was surrounded by friends and family before he passed peacefully, “just as he’d wished for,” the statement said.

Linda Gray, his on-screen wife and later ex-wife in the original series and the sequel, was among those with Hagman in his final moments in a Dallas hospital, said her publicist, Jeffrey Lane.

“He brought joy to everyone he knew. He was creative, generous, funny, loving and talented, and I will miss him enormously.

“He was an original and lived life to the fullest,” the actress said.

Mourning

Fans pay respect

Tourists and locals flocked to Southfork Ranch on Saturday, bringing flowers in memory of Larry Hagman, who played the infamous J.R. Ewing on the TV show Dallas.

Hagman died in Dallas, Texas on Friday at age 81 due to complications from his battle with cancer.

Southfork, a ranch north of Dallas, was known to millions of viewers as the Ewing family home. Exterior shots of the house and pool were shown when the series aired from 1978 to 1991, although the show wasn’t filmed there.

The ranch has been open for tours since the mid-1980s, and now sees more than 100,000 visitors each year. Each room of the house has a theme for each character. On Saturday, J.R. Ewing’s room had flowers and a card for tourists to sign. “Today is about Larry Hagman and his family,” said Janna Timm, a Southfork Ranch & Hotel spokeswoman. “He was such a wonderful person, and we will really miss him.”

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Berry caught in the middle as ex-boyfriend and fiancé go to war fight after having words with Martinez.

It was a pretty dramatic Thanksgiving for Halle Berry as her ex-boyfriend Gabriel Aubry and fiancé Olivier Martinez came to blows during an argument when Aubry dropped off Nahla, the four-year-old daughter he shares with Berry, for the holiday, according to The Associated Press.

TMZ reports that Martinez broke his hand and sustained neck injuries in the fight, while Aubry walked away with a broken rib, facial contusions and a possible head injury.

Sources tell Us Weekly that Aubry “initiated” the Aubry was arrested and released on $20,000 bail.

He’s due in court Dec. 13. Immediately following the scuffle, Berry obtained an emergency protective order against Aubry that forbids him from coming within 100 yards of Berry, Martinez or Nahla.

The order is set to expire Tuesday, but Berry is reportedly taking Aubry to court in hopes of making the restraining order permanent.

Taylor Swift

Swift talks about relationship mistakes she has made

Taylor Swift is well aware that she has a problem with falling in love too fast.

“I don’t think there’s an option for me to fall in love slowly or at medium speed. I either do or I don’t. I don’t think it through, really, which is a good and a bad thing,” the 22-year-old singer tells Parade magazine, adding that in retrospect, her relationships don’t always seem to be all that they are cracked up to be.

“I tend to think things are love and then look back and re-evaluate,” she says.

“I know how many people I’ve said, ‘I love you’ to. I could probably count it up, but I don’t feel like it. Part of me feels like you can’t say you were truly in love if it didn’t last. If I end up getting married and having kids, that’s when I’ll know it’s real — because it lasted.”

Got dog fever? Or maybe you're itching for a kitten? Adopting an animal for the first time can be a rewarding experience for any new owner. Studies show that pet ownership can be on par with human friendship when it comes to emotional benefits like increased self-esteem and fewer feelings of loneliness.

But with great company comes great responsibility. Even if you have your heart set on welcoming a lively German shepherd into your home, it's important to select the right pet for you, your family and your lifestyle.

"For single people, or households where people are out a lot, a dog's probably not going to be the best pet," suggests Dr. Simon Starkey, a veterinarian at PetSmart's headquarters in Arizona. Without company for extended periods of time, dogs can suffer from separation anx-

SEAFOOD & STEAK HOUSE

Give dinner an ooey, gooey touch with cheesy casserole

"Forgive me for getting a little 'cheesy' here, but that's just what this one-dish wonder is all about: cheese," writes Dave Venable in his cookbook, In the Kitchen with David.

"Everything we love about melted cheese — rich, ooey, gooeyness — is right here in this cheeseburger casserole."

1. Heat the oven to 350 F.

2. Bring a large pot of water to a boil. Add 1 tablespoon of the salt and the macaroni and cook until tender but still firm to the bite, 7 to 8 minutes. Drain well.

3. Heat a large skillet over medium-high heat. Add the beef and onion and cook, stirring, until the beef is well browned.

4. Carefully drain the fat from the skillet, then stir in the tomato sauce, the remaining 1 teaspoon of salt, and the black pepper. Bring to a simmer over low heat while preparing the remaining ingredients.

5. In bowl, combine ricotta, sour cream, bell pepper and scallions. Spread half of the pasta in a 9-by-13-inch baking dish. Top with the ricotta mixture, then the remaining pasta. Pour the meat mixture over the top. Sprinkle with the cheddar and mozzarella.

6. Bake casserole until the cheese is melted and lightly browned, about 20 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley before serving.

SHOPPERS SURFING FOR THE BEST DEALS

You know by now about Black Friday, the deeply discounted shopping day that kicks off the U.S. Christmas shopping season. But how about Cyber Monday?

As Bill Rand explains it, Cyber Monday grew as an online counterpart to Black Friday, which generally falls after the U.S. Thanksgiving. “The idea was that online retailers would offer great holiday deals the Monday after (American) Thanksgiving similar to the deals that brick and mortar shops offer the Friday after Thanksgiving,” says Rand, the assistant professor of marketing and director for the University of Maryland’s Robert H. Smith School of Business. But recently, Cyber Monday has become a bit of a misnomer, Rand adds. “Originally, Cyber Monday was on Monday because people would be at their work computers on Monday, but with the growth of the use of tablets and smartphones for online commerce, Cyber Monday had been extended and now many of the deals are offered on Black Friday as well.”

That’s the emerging trend marking 2012’s Cyber Monday — the appearance of deals as early as the Friday morning before. “Given the recovering economy and the fact that consumers are feeling more positive about their wallets than they have in a while, retailers are looking to capitalize on this trend by offering discounts and deals to get them in stores — or in the case of Cyber Monday, on to their website,” Rand says. “Black Friday was originally called Black Friday because it was a single shopping day that could put a retailer into the ‘black’ or profitable for the whole year. And retailers hope that this year will definitely bear out that name.”

According to the Toronto-based Interac Association, about 19 per cent of Canadians report they will likely shop online on Cyber Monday. “And according to our Interac survey, online shoppers expect to spend an estimated average of $303 that day,” says Teri Murphy, senior manager, corporate and stakeholder relations. Hot items include video games, books, ebooks and DVDs, clothing and accessories, computers, tablets, e-readers, mobile phones and MP3 players.

“And the release of the new Wii U and several major games means the video game market should remain strong,” adds Rand. “Other technology items like HD TVs will remain popular. Often during downturns people put off buying new TVs and other consumer durables that are failing, and so as we come out of the downturn these items tend to be purchased at a sharper rate.” — Astrid Van Den Broek

DEALS ‘WORTH IT’ FOR CANADIANS

Unlike Black Friday deals, some of which have you packing a sleeping bag to park yourself early in front of Walmart, Cyber Monday deals can be done from the comfort of your laptop.

But how can you best take advantage of these deals?

Hone in on your favourite online stores first such as Amazon or Best Buy, to see if their sites are offering any deals that particular weekend, says Bill Rand, the assistant professor of marketing and director for the University of Maryland’s Robert H. Smith School of Business. “Also, search online to see if any of the ‘brick and mortar’ stores you normally shop at also maintain an online presence,” he suggests.

Yet, even with deeply discounted products available, is it worth it for Canadians to try and take advantage of these online deals?

“Given the current exchange rate between the US and Canada — it’s almost equal — and the fact that shipping rates are lower than ever, there will be quite a few deals that will still be worth it,” says Rand. He also notes that many deals aren’t even shipping from the U.S. anymore, so the difference in shipping prices should not be large.

“For instance, Apple has announced a bunch of deals for Friday and most of that ships from China anyway,” says Rand. Yet to be sure, when shopping online, check all the additional fees, especially shipping and taxes, before hitting the checkout button.

It also helps if you do some research ahead of time to see how much products generally cost. “Many sites publish deals they plan to offer beforehand so look at these flyers to determine if the price is a good price, or if they just marked up the deal a week before to mark it down again,” Rand advises. “Slickdeals.com is a website that has a great reputation for providing research about any deals you find and determining if there is a better deal out there.”

What are some of the best sites to check out? Along with Slickdeals.com — which also collects the Black Friday/Cyber Monday deals in one place — FatWallet.com is another site to click on.

“It works as an affiliate merchant which means they provide links to other Web sites and then earn a small commission on any sales originating from FatWallet,” Rand says. “FatWallet then returns some commission to consumers so you get the standard deal and you earn a few percentage points back on your purchase as well.” — Astrid Van Den Broek

Pam Bryant loves a good deal, and when she signed up at the online mall shop.ca, she didn't know the half of it.

What caught the eye of 38-year-old Bryant was the $25 sign-up bonus, which she could use on her first purchase of $100. She went shopping on the website almost immediately, bought a well-priced LED TV, and used the bonus money towards it. Bryant liked the TV so much she shared the purchase on her Facebook wall and a few weeks later, posted a review — and that's when things got really good. When one of her friends clicked on her post and signed up to shop.ca, Bryant got a referral credit of $25. Then, when her friend spent her first $75 on the same TV, Bryant received 1 per cent of that purchase amount in her account too.

"It was way more than I bargained for," says Bryant, a wife and mom in Hamilton, Ont. "It's all about sharing information on my social networks, which I do all the time anyway, and now I get cash rewards in return."

"Our innovative Social Loyalty Network sets us apart from any other Rewards program," says Trevor Newell, founder and president of shop.ca. "We want Canadians to share the products they love with their friends, and we'll reward them for doing so every step — and share — of the way."

Shop.ca is a new and exciting online marketplace that features millions of products and thousands of brands from around the world. You can buy everything from living room furniture to pillows and tools.

Shop.ca has streamlined the whole process of online shopping in Canada, according to Drew Green, founder and chief executive officer.

When you buy at shop.ca, all your purchases go into one shopping cart, with a simple checkout process and multiple payment options. Once ordered, shop.ca ensures your order is delivered right to your door.

There aren't cross-border duty charges

THE SOCIAL LOYALTY NETWORK

Do you like to talk to your friends about the things you buy? Now you can turn that pastime into cash, says Trevor Newell, founder and president of shop.ca.

Members of the Social Loyalty Network at shop.ca can get from 1 to 2.5 per cent cash rewards when they share their purchases and post reviews via Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn or by email. They can also earn when a friend buys the same product from a link they shared.

Members also get $25 for every person they refer to shop.ca and when that friend makes a first purchase of $75 or more.

Sign-up is free and all new members get a $25 sign-up bonus to spend on a $100 purchase and 0.5 per cent cash rewards as a starting point on every purchase they make. That 0.5 per cent can turn into 2.5 per cent when they share and earn at shop.ca.

— or hassles — and there's no charge for shipping or returns. The return policy gives you up to 365 days to return an item.

Says Green: "We also have an amazing team of customer loyalty leaders right here in Canada who chat on the phone or online with you. They've even been known to drive to houses to get a product to somebody if there's been a delivery hiccup."

KIDS OF ALL AGES WILL LOVE THESE CYBER TOYS

For Cyber Monday, shop.ca offers both the Sphero and Robosapien at a special price of $109 each. But if you sign up today and become a member of shop.ca, you can use the $25 sign-up bonus against the price.

THE AMAZING SPHERO

The Sphero is being heralded as the year's hottest gadget toy.

The Sphero smart "robot" is housed in a round and durable shell roughly the size of a baseball. You control it with a tilt, touch, or swing from your smartphone or tablet. Or, you can use Sphero as a controller for on-screen games.

Sphero is IOS- and Android-compatible, and there are lots of games and apps available for download.

With the Sphero Golf app, for example, create a "hole," then swing your smartphone to put Sphero towards it.

The Chromo app lets you challenge yourself in a new way — by holding Sphero in your hand and moving it to match colours on your screen.

Or, download Sharky the Beaver, the first app that lets you take a virtual three-dimensional character for a walk around your house.

You get more than an hour of non-stop play, with cable-free induction charging.

THE WORLD'S FRIENDLIEST HOME ROBOT

Bring home WowWee's 14-inch Robosapien remote control robot — and watch the fun and silliness begin.

Designed by a NASA scientist, Ro-

Robosapien is easy-to-use with no complicated setup or need for a computer. It is easily controlled by an ergonomic remote and runs on regular batteries for more than six hours.

Passionately pursue after an early punch

The bounce back.
Meet two graduates whose early introductions to failure led to bright futures

ANDY MURDOCH,
DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY
life@metronews.ca

Most new graduates leave university confidently imagining perfect future lives, but many won't learn one main truth until after graduation: Few lives work out exactly as planned.

It's not until we face trials and errors head-on that a right path appears to us, often out of the blue. So if everyone's future is uncertain, why do today's students feel such intense pressure to make watertight plans so early on?

Maybe it's the age. Millennials face hurdles unheard of 30 years ago. With nearly a million unemployed Canadians under 30, endless contract jobs, overheated house prices and rising debt from taking on graduate and undergraduate degrees, today's alumni have every right to feel stressed.

But a university degree still carries enormous economic clout. And there is hope: We sought out two Dalhousie University alumni who faced challenges in finding their way. Their stories illustrate key lessons on bouncing back from failure.

Fail fast and fail early

Ben Graham was hired at PartSelect.com 10 years ago to drive the company's transition from a failing business-to-business sales model to a direct-to-consumer operation. Today, he's director of e-commerce with 50 staff, managing an office that recently doubled its square footage to accommodate that growth.

That said, Graham can recite a list of failures that led him to success.

At the height of the first dot-com boom, he left a commerce degree unfinished to work as a recruiter for IIT, an IT skills school in Halifax. He excelled at selling $20,000-plus tuition spots to university graduates. He even bought into his pitch and enrolled in the program.

Halfway through, the dot-com bubble burst.

"There were people in California by the side of the road with signs saying 'will code for food.' It was terrible. I was in this program in debt way past my eyeballs, wondering what to do."

At 26, he was back in a university statistics class. He finished his degree, met his future wife, and started with PartSelect after graduation.

Failures, Graham says, are not simply errors. You gain something from a failure. When his team sits down to scope out a business idea, they can plan it in detail, but know at some point it might fail in real time.

"We'll thrash and fight our way to make it work, but if it doesn't and we decide to pull the plug, it's never looked on as being a failure."

As one tries more of these experiments, he says, the risk/benefit curve starts to play out. Some will work, and when they do, they pay off.

"A lot of it is gut feeling. That's just the way the world is," he says. "You just have to keep taking risks and eventually you're going to get your payday."

That approach to failure is one echoed by Dr. Aaron Newman, Canada Research Chair in Cognitive Neuroscience. "Fail fast, fail early and fail a lot," says Newman.

Newman researches how learning shapes the brain. He's developing video games that teach second languages with a Halifax company called Copernicus studios. "One of the core features that we are working Ciurlia fell into a common trap. She socialized too much and let her academics slide. "I had a really good time in first year. That dragged me down, because it's really hard to bring your GPA up after all that kind of stuff."

Failure stung, but pride kicked in. She had paid for most of her schooling and didn't want to waste more time or money. "I didn't want to lose out on the opportunity, because you only have four years," she says. "So I had to learn from my mistakes and apply myself."

Ciurlia graduated as one of the college's first alumna with two awards — most improved student and best thesis project. Her thesis, an examination of laboratory waste at Dalhousie, also earned her a job. "I am working with the (Dalhousie) Office of Sustainability, trying to develop a strategy to implement recycling programs or a greening the labs program."

Ciurlia's first-year crisis is one that Suzanne Sheffield, of Dalhousie's Centre for Learning and Teaching, acknowledges can be a difficult one from which to recover. Twenty years ago, people went to university to find themselves, she says, while today they expect to find a career. If their chosen path doesn't work out, change seems almost unimaginable.

"The problem is, students make decisions without knowing any of the possibilities that are out there for them," Sheffield says.

That's why Sheffield acknowledges the benefits of a curriculum that balances foundational study with applied learning. "If students apply and practise their knowledge, even in first-year courses, this speeds up the connection and focuses learning," she says.

The upside of worry

Still worried about the future? That's not necessarily a bad thing, says Jeannette Hung, a career counsellor at Dalhousie. She deals with anxious people all the time. She says anxiety is a natural reaction, a good reaction and a great starting point.

- "I'd rather have someone come to me feeling anxious about the future than not," says Hung. "It means they are motivated to succeed."

the beholder, and there are different types of annoying people. For instance: If someone makes commitments they don't keep, I might find that annoying to no end. But you may intuitively know how to slow down and make it safe for that person to make a realistic commitment. Your particular annoyance may be whining. But that doesn't even show up on my radar.

How do you know if you are, in fact, the annoying person at work?

When people read our book, they tend to recognize what they do very quickly. It's somewhat innocent, and we all do at least one of these behaviours now and again. It's just that there are certain ones we're more likely to go to under stress.

How do you cut back on your own annoying behaviours?

You can start by recognizing the particular type of negative behaviour that comes out of you under stress. Then ask yourself, "How is this working for me? Am I getting what I want? What reactions am I getting from others?" Usually people find that this behaviour is creating their own worst nightmare. Once they realize that, it's easier to change.

Is there a difference between how we exhibit these behaviours at home versus the workplace?

Yes! It can be totally opposite. Some people are a total "tank" (overly controlling) at work and a "nothing" (nonresponsive) at home. I recently interviewed a CEO who was very much a get-it-done control person at work. But she noticed she was whining to her husband about the business. Her husband could not understand how she could run a company, because she constantly presented herself as a victim. But the behaviour is totally different, because the context of the relationship is totally different.

THE IN-CREDIBILITY
FACTOR
Teresa Kruze
life@metronews.ca

Cassandra Rush loved boots, but was frustrated when she would try some of them on and the zippers wouldn't go all the way to the top. After doing some research, she realized that no one was offering boots with different calf sizes. Securing a loan through the Canadian Business Foundation, Rush developed a business plan and travelled to Mexico to work with a manufacturer. Sassy Cassy's Boots was born and today she designs and manufactures her specialty boots that are worn by celebrities — and happy customers everywhere.

I knew I was on my way when... I went to the Country Music Awards and worked with celebrities who saw my product and loved it. They were able to provide testimonials for my product and that built the marketing foundation for my company. People saw celebrities wearing my boots and that made Sassy Cassy's successful in the marketplace. I've joined shoe associations and hired sales reps to sell the product across Canada, the U.S. and online. Great things take time, but I'm looking forward to a successful future.

100th Grey Cup. Hosts hold on to win after hot start vs. Stampede

A rugged defence staggered the Calgary Stampede before Ricky Ray delivered the knock-out punch and earned the Toronto Argonauts a historic Grey Cup victory Sunday.

Toronto's defence, under the guidance of former Calgary assistant Chris Jones, held CFL rushing leader Jon Cornish to 57 yards while pressuring quarterback Kevin Glenn before Ray's seven-yard TD pass to Andre Durie late in the game cemented the Argonauts' 35-22 win in the 100th edition of the CFL championship.

Ray, obtained last December in a blockbuster trade with Edmonton, finished 18-of-30 passing for 231 yards and two TDs.

The Argos dominated a potent Calgary offence that scored 51 TDs this season — tied with Montreal for the league lead — holding it to just four field goals before Maurice Price's TD catch and two-point conversion with 20 seconds remaining.

Defensive back Pacino Horne brought the rabid Rogers Centre sellout crowd of 53,208 to its feet in the opening half. His key 25-yard TD interception return staked Toronto to a dominant 18-point halftime advantage.

Calgary came in as the CFL's hottest team with 13 wins in 15 games after opening the season 3-4. Glenn guided the club to nine wins in 14 starts after incumbent Drew Tate injured his shoulder, then replaced the injured Tate (forearm) to lead the Stampede past the defending Grey Cup-champion B.C. Lions in last weekend's West final.

Calgary also boasted the CFL's top rusher in Cornish, the league's top Canadian after running for 1,457 yards this season.

But Glenn and Co. had no answer for Toronto's swarming defence as the Argos ended their season with a fifth straight victory.

"We didn't start well. We didn't take advantage of their turnover and they got two touchdowns on theirs," Stampede coach John Hufnagel said. "But the bottom line was that we didn't get the ball into the end zone until the game was out of reach."

Kackert runs away with Grey Cup MVP award

Toronto Argonauts running back Chad Kackert was named the outstanding player of the 100th Grey Cup.

Kackert's 20 carries for 133 yards helped lift the Argos to a 35-22 win over the Calgary Stampede on Sunday.

He also recorded eight catches for 62 yards.

Kackert was an impact player for Toronto throughout the post-season.

The Simi Valley, Calif., native scored twice as the Argos downed the Edmonton Eskimos in the East Division semifinal two weeks ago.

He then added a spectacular 49-yard TD run up the middle to give Toronto the lead in an upset 27-20 victory in Montreal in the East final last Sunday.

Argos defensive end Ricky Foley was named the game's most outstanding Canadian.

The 30-year-old from Courtice, Ont., had four tackles, one fumble recovery and one sack for five yards.

Foley joined Toronto in 2010 after four seasons with the B.C. Lions.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20
No matter how high you have flown in the past you will fly even higher this coming week. The Sun linked to Uranus in your sign will endow you with courage and confidence — but most of all with a sense of adventure.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21
Sacrifices will have to be made but there is no reason why they should be painful. The secret is to not let yourself get so attached to material things. Money is important, of course, but next to love and laughter it means nothing.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21
Let other people guide you this week. It will do you good to let family and friends take responsibility for making important decisions — and free up time and energy for you to have fun of a more personal kind.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23
Because you are such a generous soul you find it hard to say no when others ask you to help, but the planets warn you could end up taking on more than you can handle this week. Put your own health and happiness first.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23
If you insist that the world conforms to your way of thinking then, to put it bluntly, you are going to be disappointed. Why would you want everyone to think like you anyway?

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Rise above petty people and petty squabbles today — let nothing disturb your peace of mind. Remember: it is not what others say or do that is important but how you choose to react to it. So don't react.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
It may seem as if you are getting lots done but according to the planets you are running around for no good reason. It's time to slow down a bit and take more care of what you are doing. Think quality, not quantity.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Try not to do things for no better reason than you want to convince the doubters that you have what it takes. If you do that then in effect you are letting them dictate the course of events.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Today's Sun-Uranus link encourages you to do something out of the ordinary, something that shakes up the cozy little world you inhabit. If there is one thing you should always aim to avoid it is being predictable.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Think about who you are, where you are going and what kind of an impression you want to make on the world. That might sound a bit heavy for the start of the week but you're in a philosophical mood.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You will have to deal with a situation today that has occurred in one form or another many times before. If you can see the parallels with past events then it should be easy. If you don't, you'll make the same mistakes.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20
A rival will underestimate how serious you are about your ambitions and that puts you at an advantage. For too long you have kept in the background when you should have been center. Go for it! SALLY BROMPTON
